GENDER. Journal for Gender, Culture and Society

Call for papers in the free section

We invite authors from various disciplines to submit contributions that deal with gender relations in various social and cultural areas from a theoretical or empirical perspective to be published in the free section of GENDER. Journal for Gender, Culture and Society.

Interdisciplinary approach

GENDER is an interdisciplinary forum for German-speaking women's and gender studies with a special focus on social and cultural science disciplines. We therefore welcome contributions from political science, film and media studies, sociology, communication science, literary science, history, pedagogics, art history, psychology, religious studies and many more. Furthermore, analyses from natural sciences, technologies, medicine, health studies, ecology and environmental studies as well as engineering are of interest and very welcome.

German-speaking journal with an international focus

GENDER is a journal with a focus on a German-speaking audience (Germany, Austria, Switzerland). Contributions discuss relevant questions of gender relations in various countries, in part from an international comparative perspective. Non-German speakers are welcome to submit their articles in English.

Contributions to the free section

GENDER is published in three issues a year; each issue has a special thematic focus. In addition to the thematic focus, there is a free section, which has a broad thematic scope. Submissions to the free section are reviewed and discussed by the editorial board as part of regular editorial meetings and undergo a double-blind peer review process once they are accepted by the editorial board.
